Jew Is Appointed Air Vice Marshal

OTTAWA, (CJN) — The Minister of Defence, the Hon. Paul T. Hellyer, has announced the promotion of Maurice Lipton, 48, Deputy Vice-Chief of the Air Staff at Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa, to the rank of Air Vice Marshal from that of Air Commodore.

Air Vice Marshal Lipton is the highest-ranking Jew in the Royal Canadian Air Force and, as Deputy Chief of Staff Operations of NORAD, a post to become effective August 15 with his transfer to Colorado Springs, Colo., also the highest-ranking Jew in the North American defence organization.

Lipton belongs to one of the leading Jewish families in Nova Scotia. Born in Sydney, N. S. in June 1916, Air Vice Marshal Lipton completed his education at Dalhousie University, where he graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering in 1938 when he joined the RCAF. After training as a pilot, he served as a flying instructor until May 1941 at 3 Service Flying Training School, Calgary and at the Central Flying School, Trenton. He then went overseas and helped form the first Canadian night-fighter squadron in Britain, later serving as its Commanding Officer.

Air Vice Marshal Lipton returned to Canada in July 1942.

Air Vice Marshal Lipton was appointed Commandant of the RCAF Staff College in August 1952, and remained there until transferred to AFHQ as Director of Air Plans in August 1953. In August 1958 he was named Chief of Operations at OFHQ and served in that capacity until August 1960 when he was appointed Deputy Commander of the 30th NORAD Region with headquarters at Truax Air Force Base, Madison, Wis. In July 1963 he was appointed Deputy Vice-Chief of the Air Staff at AFHQ.

Air Vice Marshal Lipton was Mentioned in Dispatches in 1942 and, for his contribution to the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada, was awarded the Air Force Cross in June 1945.

Takes over duties on August 15th: Air Vice Marhal Morris Lipton.

BONN AND JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM. — Here in the capital of Israel some people speak overtly of the "complete failure" of the effort to establish relations between West Germany and the Jewish nation. One publication states that the "German policy" of the government is bankrupt. Others — those who supported Ben Gurion's let's-forget attitude towards the new Germany and applauded his handshake with Adenauer at New York's Waldorf Astoria — claim that the reparations bill is paid and that it has been a successful deal. Yet they too admit there is a crisis between Bonn and Jerusalem.

It is evident that Eshkol, who believes in personal diplomacy, is eager to discuss the outstanding problems with Chancellor Erhard somewhere outside Germany, as he is reluctant to go there. On the other hand, it is almost a certainty that West Germany will not — at least, not in the nearest future — normalize its relations with the Jewish nation because the exchange of ambassadors would bring about (Bonn claims) a rupture with the Arab world.

The counter-argument — that all great powers, including Russia, are diplomatically represented in Israel AND in the Arab countries — apparently does not impress Erhard. It seems as if the official German policy vis-à-vis Israel is based upon the continuation of a back-street affair. Thus many Israelis ask: is Bonn so attractive a blonde as to warrant this kind of relationship?

The Germans, as De Gaulle reportedly told Eshkol recently, are soldiers and merchants. Regarding Israel, their orientation, according to the Frenchman, is based on purely commercial considerations.

Though this statement, attributed to the French leader, has been denied officially in Israeli government circles, nevertheless it sounds authentic. A French commentator said about this denial:

"We French believe that a dementi in diplomacy, when most emphatic, is the best confirmation for the veracity of a rumor."

However, the Germans seem to be very sensitive to what Jews and Israelis think about their equation towards democracy. In other words, they want to eat the Arab cake and, at the same time, have the Israelis on their side.

How hypersensitive the Germans are I discovered in a purely personal manner.

In Jerusalem, a German Jewish leader told me bluntly that the German Minister of Defense, Von Hassel, is incensed by an editorial questioning his loyalty to the ideals of democracy in The Canadian Jewish News. Recalling it, I remembered having written that Von Hassel, during his term as governor of the Province of Schleswig-Holstein, had allowed this area to become the paradise for the Nazis in hiding.

My German acquaintance stated that the Minister had asked him to transmit to me his feelings of outrage at this insinuation.

I merely answered: "I'm ready to retract my accusation whenever His Excellency will consent to be interviewed and to reply clearly to pertinent questions based on facts."

I had the impression that the German Jewish leader called Bonn, but was not encouraged to pursue negotiations.

This is one more example of the duplicity of the present Bonn policy. Bonn feels that it paid for Ben Gurion's removing the Germans from their splendid isolation following World War II; they paid through the reparations deal.

DID they pay? Is the account settled finally? Is the new German activity in Cairo and Bonn's reluctance to appoint an ambassador in Israel a denial of De Gaulle's estimation of the German policy?

Anti-Jewish boycott movement In California

LOS ANGELES, (JCNS) — Los Angeles businessmen are being approached by a group "The Christian Defence League" to have their firms included in a "Christian Buyers' Guide."

The C.D.L. describes itself as a Protestant-oriented organization for members of the white race only, not "anti-anything, just pro-Christian." Letters to businessmen state that Christian buyers' guides "to strengthen the Christian economy," are planned for all areas of the nation.

The organization is headed by a notorious Californian racist, Wesley Swift, and sponsored by a Los Angeles retail store owner, James Oviatt, who has been named by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League as a distributor of antisemitic publications.

Third Supersol Man Arrested

CANADIAN OWNERS INVITED TO TESTIFY

Bronfman To CJN: Company Solid, Not For Sale

JERUSALEM (CJN) — Israeli police are preparing to invite a number of Canadians, members of the board of directors of Supersol, to come to Israel to help clear up the mess now known as "l'affaire."

Some of the documents saved by the police from the fire admittedly set at Supersol headquarters in Bnai Brak by manager Abraham Feinberg are now being studied by the auditors Braude and Company engaged by the Canadian board.

According to the facts known at present, a four million pound discrepancy has been discovered in the balance sheet.

BRONFMAN DENIES HEYMANN CLAIM

Abraham Feinberg, and the company's chief auditor Yehuda Heymann, who had been arrested and now out on bail, admitted complicity in falsifying book entries.

Heymann had claimed, as The Canadian Jewish News reported last week, that he had warned the Supersol management on a number of occasions that the accounts were being tampered with and that he had twice submitted his resignation to the board of directors.

In Montreal, Charles Bronfman, chairman of the board of directors of Supersol, denied emphatically Heymann's claims. He said that neither he nor company President Bertram Loeb were ever told by Heymann of any irregularities).

In the meantime, Jerusalem police arrested a third Supersol executive, Detroit-born Yechiel Hordes.

An important official of Supersol residing in Canada, when told by The Canadian Jewish News that Israeli police were planning to invite him and other board members to Israel to lend their assistance in pursuing their investigations, stated:

"As long as Feinberg is out of jail, none of us will dare go to Israel. We are afraid of what he might do. After all, he admitted arson."

Charles Bronfman told The Canadian Jewish News that the rumours spread by Israeli newspapers to the effect that Superol is ready to sell out to Histadrut or other concerns are totally unfounded. The company is solid, despite everything that has happened.

"We are not even contemplating such a step," he said.

Another accountant, Canadian Nathan Gesser, is now in Israel helping to examine the accounts.

TEL AVIV MAGAZINE REVEALS TERROR AGAINST OFFICIALS

The popular Tel Aviv weekly magazine Olam Hazeh has revealed in its latest issue that one threat of murder and at least three actual attempts on the lives of persons involved in unravelling the Supersol fraud took place since the Canadian directors first began to smell a rat.

Supersol is the largest supermarket chain in Israel and the majority of its stock is owned by Canadians. Charles Bronfman of Montreal and Bertram Loeb of Ottawa represent the principal shareholders.

Olam Hazeh relates that when Charles Bronfman heard about irregularities in the affairs of Supersol in Israel he dispatched a personal friend, Meinert Waxberg, owner of a U.S. supermarket, to investigate.

GOES TO POLICE

In short order, Olam Hazeh continues, Waxberg noted discrepancies in the company's accounts which led him straight to Abraham Feinberg as the author of the obvious manipulations behind them. Waxberg lost no time in going straight to the police, asking for action at once. It was on this occasion that Waxberg also told the police that he had received anonymous phone calls threatening him with consequences reminiscent of the Capone era if he continued his investigations.

Olam Hazeh alleges that the police ridiculed both of Waxberg's complaints — regarding discrepancies in the company's accounts and the threats he had personally received — and refused to act on either.

TALK IN HOTEL

Convinced that some person or persons were trying to foil his efforts to carry out his assignment, he returned to his hotel, the Sharon in Herzlia. From there he phoned one of Supersol's Israeli officials and invited him to come to his room in the Sharon for a discussion at which he intended disclosing what he had just disclosed to the police. To his dismay, when the official arrived, he was accompanied by other Supersol officials, including Abraham Feinberg.

Feeling himself surrounded on all sides by parties to a conspiracy to silence him, Waxberg became hysterical and, according to Olam Hazeh, exclaimed:

"Take him (Feinberg) away from here. I don't want to see him. I'm afraid of him. He wants to murder me."

The other officials tried in vain to calm him. He was so frightened that he left and took the first plane for Europe.

In London, Waxberg gave a special interview to the influential Financial Times. In it he revealed his discovery of discrepancies in the company's accounts as well as the threat against his life.

to do nothing, despite the Canadian board of directors' declared support of Waxberg and its own complaint of irregularities and request for police action.

Soon afterward, two other employees of Supersol became targets of foul play. A Supersol security officer, Abraham Azulai, driving his car suddenly lost control of the wheel and swerved off the highway. Unhurt, he took the car to a garage where an expert mechanic, after examining it, declared that its steering assembly had been tampered with in such a way as to have caused the failure which might have cost Azulai his life. Azulai obtained a written affidavit from the mechanic to this effect and reported the incident to two fellow employees at Supersol, Eliahu Warshawski and Bill Shapiro.

DOCTORS' ASSEMBLY IN ISRAEL LAUNCHES WAR ON CANCER

Haifa, Israel (CJN). — Despite her political problems and international battles, Israel launched a new war against humanity's great enemy: cancer. Hundreds of world-famous physicians are participating in the Sixth World Assembly of the Israel Medical Association which began its deliberations last week in Haifa and will close its sessions this week in Jerusalem.

Leading Statesmen at Confab

Two of the nation's leading statesmen, former Prime Minister David Ben Gurion and Deputy Minister of Health Yitzhaq Raphael, gave the official blessings to the assembly when it opened its session at the Dan Carmel Hotel here.

Mr. Raphael, who is credited with the tremendous progress made by the nation's health organization, urged the doctors assembled here to ignore the intangibles of politics and rather dedicate themselves, with the help of the government, to fight the curse of cancer. Ben Gurion, in a dramatic speech, stressed the ancient ideal of the oldest Jewish profession — that of healing the sick at all times and under all conditions.

Medical Leaders Present

Universally respected medical authorities from the United States, France and Israel (which has the largest per capita number of physicians) are participating in the deliberations from which some new method to fight cancer may emerge.

Prof. Albert B. Sabin, the American virologist and developer of the live virus vaccine against polio, said about the fight against cancer:

"Every year brings us something new. One has to keep working and to watch for the unexpected — medicine may yet find a cure for cancer before discovering its cause . . .

"Scientists throughout the world are attempting to determine whether cancer in humans are caused by viruses."

Foreign guests told The Canadian Jewish News that they were enormously impressed by Israel's Department of Health and medical institutions in general.

New hospitals are rising. Some of them, opened in the last two-three years, do honour to the young nation, as they can be compared to the best of their kind in the most advanced countries.

HOMES BOMBED IN MISSOURI

WASHINGTON — A number of bombings and attempted bombings have taken place at the homes and businesses of Jews in Kansas City, Missouri, and the F.B.I. is now reported to have joined in the investigation.

The Kansas City police disclosed on Saturday that a "pattern of anti-Semitism has emerged." There were five incidents in the last seven months involving persons whose names has appeared in the news.

Unexploded bombs were found at the homes of Mr. Irving Achtenberg, an attorney, and Dr. Lazar Shapiro, shortly after they were featured in the newspapers. Damage estimated at about $40,000 was caused when a bomb exploded at a discount store owned by Jews.

Jews, Egyptians In Feud At Athens Port

ATHENS, Greece — The passengers and crews of an Israeli and an Egyptian ship clashed here last Friday night when the two vessels docked alongside each other.

About 100 Greek policemen were called to the area as bottles, stones and pieces of wood were thrown. The trouble started when the Egyptians on the deck of the Al Gazayer shouted abuse at two Israeli women who were passing along the quay with the captain of the Zim ship Zion.

Some Israelis shouted back at the Egyptians, and fighting broke out between groups from the two ships.

Some of the Egyptians, used knives. Two Israelis were hurt slightly, but sailed with the ship later.

Four policemen were injured, one of them with a knife wound.

While the clash was going on Egyptian national songs were being broadcast from the loudspeakers of the Al Gazayer.

Five Egyptians were detained by the police, but were later allowed to sail.

The Zion was guarded by policemen until she sailed to prevent any attempts at arson.

The Greek press carries extensive reports on the clash, accusing the Egyptians of starting the trouble and saying they were "warmongers" and "savages".

CANADA DEMARCHE IN MOSCOW CONFIRMED BY THE PRIME MINISTER

OTTAWA (CJN) — In reply to a question in the House of Commons from Stanley Knowles (NDP Winnipeg), Prime Minister Pearson revealed that Canada had made representations to the Soviet government concerning reports of Soviet anti-Semitism.

(On the eve of Passover, the Prime Minister had instructed Canadian Ambassador Ford to express to the Soviet authorities Canada's "concern" over the reports concerning the treatment meted out to the Jewish minority in the USSR, as the Canadian Jewish News reported exclusively at the time).

Negro Anti-Semitism Examined (Part II)

By SHAD POLIER

THE JEW AND THE RACIAL CRISIS

Far from being nervous over Negro strivings for a better life, Jews welcome it warmly.

There is no Jewish hostility to the upward movement of the Negro toward full participation in the economic benefits of American society. In part this is accounted for by our position in the economic structure, as a result of which the Negro is not a competitor for jobs.

There is, however, an even more fundamental reason for the absence of hostility. We Jews believe that there is room in America to provide a full economic life for everyone. Indeed, we welcome the Negro's emergence into fuller participation in our economic life, just as we urge that our country's doors be open to persons of other lands who seek to enter to enjoy a better life, although relatively few Jews will seek entry.

SAME FOR HOUSING

What I have said of employment is, I believe, essentially true of housing. I should doubt that Jews are concerned by the movement of Negroes into their neighborhood because they are Negroes. They are concerned lest the onward movement of Negroes bring persons of a lower economic and social status and threaten the spread of slums. I venture to say, however, that the reaction would be no different if those who were moving into the neighborhood were white persons of the same economic, social and educational level as Negroes.

But there is one area of integration in which there is deep concern and great apprehension on the part of many Jews — the current turmoil over efforts to end racial imbalance in the public schools. Here again, I am confident, the problem is not one of color.

No matter how much we Jews have been affected and influenced by the attitudes of our countrymen, we remain relatively immunized to racial prejudice. This is true because, unlike some others, we cherish our history of oppression and teach it to our children. We make it a part of our most sacred holidays. We humbly remind ourselves and teach our children that we were once slaves unto Pharoah. We believe in the good things for all men regardless of their race, their color or their creed. We recognize that education is the veritable "open sesame" to the modern world.

Shad Polier is a prominent New York lawyer, author of a weekly civil rights and civil liberties newsletter, who is Chairman of the National Governing Council of the American Jewish Congress.

But there is a great distance between the Seder table and the public school. Because we are human, we are unwilling — or at least reluctant — to extend benefits to the children of others if we think it will be at the expense of our own.

We have, I believe, fallen into the trap — together with the rest of the white community — of believing that public school integration in the North must necessarily be harmful to our own children. This approach on the part of the white community, of which we Jews are a part, seems to me to reflect a misconception of American society — a lack of understanding of the potentialities of American life, a lack of confidence in the possibilities of our country.

This attitude, which we too often share with the rest of the white community, rest upon a basic fallacy. It is comparable to the gross error of the Marxists who regarded class war as inevitable because they thought there was just so much wealth and income to go around. They reasoned, therefore, that progress could be achieved only by class war in which the proletariat, the dispossessed, would take over the instruments of production.

PLENTY PLUS FREEDOM

The Western world has shown that in an advanced economic society there is an alternative which provides both the blessings of plenty and the blessings of freedom and human dignity.

Today, particularly in education, the white community has fallen into the same conceptual error as far as public school integration is concerned. The white community has been increasingly aware of the inadequacies of the present educational system. It has drawn the conclusion — a false conclusion — that our public schools, already inadequate, will be gravely and inevitably damaged by introducing into white schools Negro children who have been socially, economically, educationally and emotionally disadvantaged.

What the white community — and this includes the Jewish community — fails to see is that it is not a question of just so much education to go around, but rather that our society is rich enough and skilled enough to provide quality education for children without penalizing any of them. But to do so, we must greatly strengthen our school system, build new school buildings in areas where de facto segregation will be minimized, provide more and better teachers, auxiliary services for remedial reading, enriched programs for integrated schools and similar services. The fact is that with enough will and enough funds, miracles can be wrought in giving equal and quality education to every child.

CHANCE OF ATTITUDE

The approach to this problem, I would urge, requires first and foremost a change of attitude. We Jews should be the first to realize this. For we know — or should know — that the problem America faces today in the North in school integration is basically no different from the problem the people of Israel face as they seek to absorb and to prepare for equal citizenship the children of families from non-Europeans lands. Those children and their parents have come to Israel with all of the economic, social, and educational handicaps with which the Negro has come into our Northern cities. Indeed, in terms of dimensions, our American problem is relatively small. More than half of all the children in Israel below high school are from disadvantaged homes and family backgrounds.

There is, of course, a difference in the situation in Israel. It is illustrated by a recent conversation between Moshe Kol, head of Israel's Youth Aliyah movement, and an American visitor, non-Jewish, to whom he had explained what Israel is doing for children from Arab lands.

The visitor listened and exclaimed, "Why, you have just the same problem we have."

To which Kol replied, "But there is a difference; we welcome these children and their families. They are our brothers."

ISRAEL SHOWS WAY

Israel, with all of its tremendous economic problems has chosen to tax itself heavily to provide the funds, the plant, the services and staff to solve its integration problem, which has many times the dimensions of our problem here. Israel has done so without lowering educational standards and without taking anything from pupils who do not need the extra help that is given to Israel's own disadvantaged children. Israel is doing so not only out of a sense of brotherhood but because it realizes the consequences of grudging, halfhearted measures.

Now that the civil rights bill is law, may we not hope that the coalition of religious, civic, labor, and other groups that led the fight for enactment will extend its efforts to winning enactment of a measure that would bring Federal funds into the effort to make equal education synonymous with equality in education?

Faced with the threat of being outdistanced by the Soviet Union, our country quickly moved to close the missile gap by pouring tens of millions of dollars into the enrichment of our educational system in the field of science. Today we are faced by an enormously greater and no less dangerous gap — the educational chasm that separates the Negro child from the white child and that threatens our viability as a nation and our future as a leader of the free world. In the face of this challenge, the Federal government must play its proper role. Toward this end, men and women of good will and abiding concern cannot be silent.

The day of victory for human freedom and dignity will, I believe, come sooner and more certainly if every Jew enlists with mind and heart. To do otherwise is to default in our obligations as citizens and to sully our Jewish integrity, I believe we shall play our part at this historic moment.

This is the second and concluding installment of this article. The first appeared in the issue of July 31st.

STATEMENT BY AMBASSADOR HERZOG

Arab propaganda against Israel failed, world conference told

Geneva (JCNS) — Despite its improved organization and sophistication, Arab anti-Israeli propaganda was not making much headway in Europe, Africa or other parts of the world.

Dr. Yaakov Herzog, former Ambassador to Canada and now Deputy Director-General of the Israeli Ministry for Foreign Affairs, told the Conference of Jewish Organizations.

Enumerating the outstanding events of the past six months Dr. Herzog stressed the reaffirmation by the governments of the U.S., the United Kingdom and France of their support for Israel's integrity and independence; the failure of the massive Arab political effort undertaken in almost 60 countries against Israel's water project; Israel's agreement with the United States on a joint project for the desalination of sea water and with the Common Market on tariff reduction for Israel's exports, and, most recently, the failure of the Arabs to raise anti-Israeli emotions at the Conference of African States in Cairo.

"Arab propaganda is better organized today and is being implemented with greater sophistication than ever before", Dr. Herzog declared. In certain countries lately it had also become more impregnated with anti-Jewish elements. Nevertheless, this propaganda could not register any substantial success against Israel's growing network of international and economic relations.

When the Conference discussed ways and means to improve the plight of Russian Jewry, COJO's President, Dr. Nahum Goldmann, stressed the importance of enlisting the support of non-Jewish public opinion and particularly of those groups in the West, including Communist elements, who could carry weight with the Soviet Government.

B'NAI B'RITH MEETING HERE THIS WEEKEND

Members of Toronto B'nai B'rith will have an opportunity to participate in an important event during this week-end (August 14-16) when the B'nai B'rith National Commission on Israel holds its Tenth Anniversary Convention at the Seaway Towers Hotel here. This marks the first time that the Israel Commission will have convened its sessions outside the United States, and testifies to the important stature of the newly-constituted first Canadian District No. 22, which has its headquarters in Toronto. Many of the most famous personalities in International B'nai Brith circles will be flying to Toronto this week-end to take part in the sessions. Delegates from all parts of the continent. will be present. Reports will be delivered on all activities of the Order pertaining to Israel.

A major point of the B'nai B'rith Israel program adopted by the Administrative Committee calls for continued and intensified co-operation with the Israel Bond Organization Campaigns. B'nai B'rith members have always played a leading role in the important work of securing Israel's future by strengthening her economy — a role befitting their stature as members of the oldest and largest Jewish service organization in the world.

A highlight event which will be taking place during the Convention week-end will be the closing luncheon on Sunday, August 16th when Abraham Feinberg, International President of the State of Israel Bond Organization will deliver the major address. This will also serve as the occasion for a significant ceremony of presentation to Harry Pachter, Israel Commissioner for District No. 22, in recognition of his years of dedication and devotion to the cause of Israel's re-birth. During the past month, members of Toronto B'nai B'rith Lodges and Chapters undertook a unique summer Bond Campaign to enroll 900 B'nai B'rith Bond Buyers by August 14th. A special scroll will be presented to Mr. Pachter at the Convention Luncheon, upon which will be inscribed the names of all those who purchased an Israel Bond in his honour.

Other Convention highlights include: the Kiddush Reception on Friday evening when hosts will be District No. 22; Ladies Luncheon on Saturday; Cocktail Reception on Saturday evening with Eglinton Lodge serving as hosts, to be followed by the Symposium "An American Looks At Israel" and "An Israeli Looks at the Diaspora" with distinguished participants, His Excellency Gershon Avner, Ambassador of Israel to Canada, and Dr. Emannuel Neumann, former President of the Zionist Organization of America.

Following the Closing Luncheon on Sunday, which Mr. Abraham Feinberg will address, the final session of the Commission will hear National Chairman Morris Alexander of Chicago, and Philip E. Katz, on the subject, "The Past Ten Years", and "The Next Ten Years".

We don't know how to tell you this, but all transatlantic jet fares are the same.

Including all those reduced rates you may have read about recently.

We'd like to say we're cheapest, but we can't. No one can. All airlines have exactly the same jet fares to the same cities. They always did. Only now they're cheaper. Including El Al's.

Starting April 1, all transatlantic jet fares come down. Ours. Theirs. Everybody's. So your travel agent was right all along—you're wasting time looking for that exclusive low jet price you thought you saw in an ad. It doesn't exist.

But this fact does: While everything else gets more expensive, flying costs you less than ever before. Regardless of the carrier.

So how do you pick an airline? Extra touches. Convenience. For instance, you could drop in on your travel agent and say, "I want to take an economy group fare trip to Israel for $535 round trip from New York including stopover in Europe on the way back. Who flies it?" And he will say, "Seventeen airlines. But El Al does it twice as often." Now that's convenience. And what a bargain. Want to hear more? Visit your friendly local travel agent. Or El Al. And remember, we're no cheaper than anyone else.

DO ISRAELIS NEED OUR SUPPORT?

BEN GURION SPEAKS

David Ben Gurion does not know the meaning of the word, retirement. In fact, perhaps his almost uninterrupted intervention in the affairs of the nation and his constant reminder of what Israel should be are relevant and should be read seriously.

Recently Mr. Ben Gurion, in an address delivered at the World Conference of Labor Zionists, included his own party in his usual criticism of the established Jewish organizations.

The Old Man cautioned the Labor Zionists, especially those from North America, not to "pass resolutions no one intends to carry out, otherwise it is plain hypocricy." He even lashed out at the term, Socialism, when applied to his friends in North America. He said that "both Stalin and Nasser claimed to represent Socialism," thus he would prefer to forget this term.

As for the next Zionist World Congress, he continued, he would not attend it, "nor will I have anything to do with it." He needled his American Labor Zionist friends by coining a new bon mot: the Poale Zion are neither Poalim (workers), nor do they live in Zion.

But the piece de resistance was the tirade against those from the affluent society who believe that their fund raising keeps Israel alive.

Said B.G.: "Everything achieved in this country was done by those who came here to settle. This country (Israel) will exist with or without foreign aid, for its survival depends solely upon those who dwell here."

No matter what one says about Ben Gurion, both friend and opponent agree that the Old Leader never is dull.

NIEMOELLER MEA CULPA

THE SAD TRUTH

The complete candour of the famous German clergyman Pastor Martin Niemoeller in disclosing that neither he nor any of his thousands of colleagues in the German Protestant church spoke out in defence of the Jews during the Hitler hell is refreshing in its grim, melancholy way. Protestations of innocence, implied or overt, by the accusers of others are generally more the order of things than the mea culpa that Pastor Niemoeller includes in his recent letter to The Right Reverend H. R. Hunt, Anglican Suffragan Bishop of Toronto.

The Toronto clergyman was under the mistaken impression, shared by millions to this day, that Niemoeller's opposition to Hitler included opposition to his "solution of the Jewish problem." It included nothing of the kind, Niemoeller reveals. The opposition consisted exclusively of defiance of Hitler's policy toward the Christian churches.

And Niemoeller should know. His brother, Wilhelm Niemoeller, is a member of Germany's Commission on Church History which, with characteristic German thoroughness, has been counting the precise number of German clergymen who suffered the various forms of Hitler's gamut of oppression. It makes a neat and tidy catalogue, but it completely lacks a category to take care of those clergymen who died or suffered for having opposed Hitler's anti-Jewish program. There was not one name to go into it, not even the name Niemoeller.

This is a major contribution to the Christian-Jewish dialogue which has lately been gathering momentum and which promises to re-open in the months ahead. It offers at least one thoroughly reliable, and sobering, fact to go on.

RIDEAU CLUB

FIGHTING DISCRIMINATION

Recent moves to have four prominent Canadian Jews penetrate the inner sanctum of Gentile exclusiveness — Ottawa's Rideau Club — could not but help provoking mixed feelings in Jew and Gentile alike. The condescension involved on the part of the Rideau Club is well nigh intolerable to self-respecting people everywhere.

On the other hand, the idea of removing one more club from the roster of those that exclude Jews is a valid one, and to implement it the spectacle of four prominent Jews standing, cap in hand, awaiting admission to the Rideau Club, is perhaps as unavoidable as it is distasteful. Thus the four men are, in a way, humble servants of an important cause. They stoop to conquer.

There is, however, another means of breaking down the walls of this kind of club and that is the refusal of those who would normally be welcomed to membership to accept it. And it is only fair to note that John Diefenbaker was the first Canadian Prime Minister to decline membership in the Rideau Club. The reason for his refusal was that the club excluded Jews. Never did he speak more eloquently than with that refusal.

ELUL

DAYS OF AWE

In the somewhat complicated Hebrew calendar, the sixth month, Elul, immediately preceding the new year, is also the most important. In the tradition of our people, Elul is the month of awe, of penitence, of the analysis of one's deeds during the entire year. According to the old Yiddish saying, during Elul "even the fish in their secure waters are trembling" before the Almighty as the Day of Judgment, the Jewish New Year, the Day of Remembrance, approaches.

Somehow (is it not remarkable) the most ominous events in history do occur in the season of the Days of Awe. The First World War began at this period; so did the Second World War. And even in this month of Elul, there are troublesome signs emanating from such distant points as Cyprus and Vietnam.

The message of Elul, therefore, is most pertinent at the present time. It asks man to review his actions, to pose the question: whither now—to war or peace?

And the shofar blows on the second day of the new moon, inaugurating Elul. We all tremble indeed as we pray for Divine guidance for all mankind, for the end of conflict and the beginning of international amity. For we always remember that peace is the eternal longing of our people and its mission among the nations of the earth.

Burundi king's aide is an orthodox Jew

When recently an Israeli citizen, Shlomo Pilus, was captured by Congolese rebels while on personal business in North Katanga, his release was obtained through the intercession of the government of the state of Burundi which the Israeli Foreign Ministry called on for assistance in the matter.

The Burundi intercession was personally attended to by Henri Landau, a Brussels businessman and financial adviser to the King of Burundi. Mr. Landau was attending the Agudath Israel conference in Jerusalem at the time the call came. He is a very orthodox Jew and has a brother, Herman Landau, living in Toronto.

Henri Landau is the only white ambassador of any African country, symbolizing the cordiality of Israeli relations with African states at large. Herman Landau told The Canadian Jewish News that his brother has just returned to Burundi from Israel.

Rabbis as modern leaders

There was a time when intellectuals and Jewish leaders referred to rabbis as "rabbits". Some intellectuals continue to look down on them as "middle class", but Jewish leaders are beginning to take notice of the new North American rabbi, who is very far from being timid, and vigorously asserts his right to total leadership.

There are good reasons for Dr. Nahum Goldmann's reiterated warnings that the American rabbinate is poised for wresting leadership from the political and secular organizations, so as to enthrone the synagogue as the supreme institution of American Jewry. This indeed, is the avowed aim of the rabbinical and the synagogue federations. However, and this is important, the synagogue projected for the role of community leadership is not the House of Prayer, modelled on the church, but the "Bet Hakenesset", the House of Assembly of the "Kehillah", the united Jewish community oriented to the integral religious core of Jewishness.

NO HEGEMONY

Certainly, North-American rabbis and synagogues do not aspire toward establishing a clerical hegemony. In keeping with the tradition of American pluralism, the rabbis affirm and strongly support the activities of a variety of non-synagogue Jewish organizations. They insist, however, that the primacy of the synagogue and the rabbi be respected.

The key-note addresses at the recent conventions of the Conservative and Reform rabbis served eloquent and determined notice that the members of these rabbinical bodies are in earnest about their right to dissent from "established lines" they consider unworthy and wrong, and to demand change and renewal.

There were years when rabbinical conventions were almost completely taken up by flowery oratory of tribute to the prophetic ethics of social justice and the prophets' role as critics and judges of the "status quo". Prophetic ideals continue to be high on the rabbinic list of priorities but in the form of programmes of action and personal deeds, for example, the groups of rabbis who journeyed to the South to testify by personal identification to their belief in the prophetic credo of the equality of men, regardless of race and colour.

CRITICISM

Both Rabbi Max J. Routtenberg's acceptance speech of the presidency of the Conservative Rabbinical Assembly and Rabbi Leon Feuer's presidential address at the Reform Central Conference of American Rabbis' convention bristled with criticism of the fund-raising organisations, the Jewish community centres, the defence organisations and, especially the folly of the "Vatican policies' pursued by the American Jewish Committee and other groups.

Both Rabbi Feuer and Rabbi Routtenberg called for a complete reassessment of the accepted values of American-Jewish life and for a reassignment of priorities and leadership. In scathing sentences both rabbinic leaders attacked the sham of the American-Jewish Establishment, the ignorance and opportunism of many prominent Jewish leaders, the sick quest for approval by the non-Jewish world, the insincerity of the United Jewish Appeal — to which so many organisations and projects unrelated to the theme of the appeal are attached — and, last but not least, the reluctance of some rabbis to assume the prophetic stance and condemn what is blameworthy for the sake of encouraging the positive, even if it is represented by the few and the powerless.

For an inside view of American Jewry, the quarterly journals and yearbooks of the Rabbinical Assembly and the Central Conference are indispensable. The quarterlies, "Conservative Judaism" and the "Journal of the Central Conference of American Rabbis", and the "Proceedings of the Rabbinical Assembly" and the "Yearbook of the CCAR", are published "pro domo" and their sponsoring organisations made no effort at promotion.

PUBLICATIONS

There is general agreement among the "cognoscenti", however, that the rabbinic publications — and this also is true of an occasional number of "Tradition", the official journal of the Orthodox Rabbinical Council — tower head and shoulder above some of the widely publicised "intellectual" journals in which secular organisations take great pride.

Obviously, not all of the 800 members of the Rabbinical Assembly and of the equal number of Central Conference rabbis are capable of assuming the new role of leadership in the tradition of prophetic activism. But, then, the scholars specialising in "The Prophets" remind us, there are not even a score of prophets from Amos to Zechariah.

Indeed, prophecy ceased at the destruction of the Temple. But, the sages comforted future generations of Israelites "although they are not prophets, they are yet descendants of prophets." There are many rabbis in the United States who qualify as "descendants of prophets".

PROTESTANT ETHIC

In a recent survey of "Religion, Sex, Social Class, Probability of Success, and Student Personality," Professors Richard E. Carney and Wilbert J. McKeachie conclude that "the Protestant ethic" dominant in American Puritanism is the motivating force of the success and the achievements of the American middleclass. Yet the typical ranking of achievement in American colleges and universities is Jew-Protestant-Catholic.

"Some recent studies", Professors Carney and McKeachie conclude, "Show American Jews to be the most 'Protestant' of all" ("Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion", Fall 1963). The "summary" of the study states that "a high level of achievement motivation is expected for the Jews than for Protestants and Catholics". Consequently, "as expected, relatively higher levels of achievement-orientation were found for Jews."

The twin forces of achievement motivation and achievement orientation, together with the dynamism of the expanding American economy, make for an unlimited marketability of Jewish talent and achievement "at the present time". In view of this situation, ever larger numbers of informed American Jews are questioning the topicality of the studies of economic discrimination against Jews undertaken by the defence agencies.

IRONY

Not a few observers with a wry but pertinent sense of wit say that at this junction it is the real Protestant who is being discriminated against by talent scouts who prefer "the most 'Protestant' of all" and his achievement-orientation.

CHRONIC AILMENT

A woman complained to her doctor of incessant stomach pains.

"How long have you been suffering?' he asked.

"Oh, since Tish Ab'ab."

"When was that?"

"Upon the destruction of the Temple, two-thousand years ago."

After deliberating awhile, the doctor said:

"It's a chronic disease."

RABBINICAL LIMITS

The rabbi was deep in his devotions, praying with his face turned to the wall. Suddenly a practical joker came up to him from behind and smacked him on his backside. Startled, the rabbi turned around.

"Oh, Rabbi!" cried the joker, chattering with fright. "The truth is . . . your back was turned . . . I didn't recognize you . . . I thought is was someone else . . . Please forgive me . . . I didn't mean it . . ."

"Never mind!" interrupted the rabbi "There's no harm done — I'm no rabbi in my rear end."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

He does not think Jews should forget

Dear Editor; In your issue of July 24, an article (reprinted from the Winnipeg Free Press) by Dr. E. M. Howse, titled "Should Jews Forget?" indicates that Dr. Howse is exploiting irresponsible statements by certain Rabbis, like Victor Riechart, Harold Schulwais and others, who are opposed to the reporting of the events surrounding the current series of trials of Nazi murderers in West Germany.

In essence, these rabbis are saying the same things said by our own German Toronto Zeitung very recently, that the time has come when "Jews should forgive and forget." It is my opinion that such rabbis, who earn their livelihood from the Jewish community, when making such irresponsible statements, are actually expressing anti-national, anti-Jewish sentiments, at a time when world Jewish leaders, a large part of the Jewish world and some German officials themselves are concerned with bringing to justice some of the 70,000 Nazi criminals who are still at large and are living in various countries throughout the world — and especially when liberal-thinking, intelligent people have expressed their concern with the need for bringing to the attention of the world the full and awful horror of the Nazi era, in order that it shall not occur again.

Today, too, we have ample evidence that neo-Nazi, anti-Semitic and reactionary elements around the world are again beginning to make themselves heard and to spread their anti-democratic venom. Thus it becomes even more vital and important to counteract these dangerous elements in our midst by constantly reminding ourselves of the terrible consequences which can result from the rise of a new dangerous Hitler movement.

It is high time that the organized Jewish community should, wherever such rabbis live, put these rabbis in their proper place. Let them confine their message to spiritual endeavour, and let them address themselves to their congregants who wish to hear them. They should not be permitted to make public statements dangerous to the Jewish people, as well as to the cause of humanity and democracy. Personal publicity seems to have become a disease with some rabbis, who are apparently oblivious to the harm they can cause by furnishing material which can be utilized by columnists for their own dubious ends.

I am also greatly surprised that The Canadian Jewish News saw fit to print this article, for The Canadian Jewish News has proven itself to be a fighter for just Jewish causes.

Ancient documents found

Papyri dating back to the fourth century B.C.E., found last year in a cave near Jericho, may prove to be of greater value for the study of Jewish history than the Qumran Dead Sea Scrolls, Dr. Frank Moore Cross, of the Middle East Languages Department at Harvard University, told a press conference in Jerusalem recentry.

Dr. Cross, the outgoing director of the Hebrew Union College's Archeological School, said that the papyri, written in the Aramaic language of the book of Ezra, were the earliest documents ever found in Palestine in quantity. They were from the archives of Samaria during the Persian occupation of Israel and were apparently taken into the cave of Abu Sinje.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

SELF JUDGMENT

"Judges and offices shalt thou make thee in all thy gates"
(Deuteronomy 16.18)

The opening verse in this week's Sidra attracts a thought provoking comment. The judges to be set up are "for thyself". Hence the verse emphasises "thou shalt make thee". This is the kind of judgment, viz., self-judgment, which is all too rare in our haste and weakness to judge only others.

In the first place, we do well to pause before passing judgment on our fellow-man. We speak here not of the person in judicial office whose professional task and social obligation is to assess the behaviour of another and to pass judgment accordingly. His training, discipline, and responsibility will usually serve as adequate safeguards. This is however a timely reminder to the ordinary layman in the multitude of his social contacts.

Most of us cannot help forming judgments of our fellow and we must therefore beware against the danger of mistaking judgment for prejudice. This is a common weakness, and the rabbis in their concern with this popular fault warned altogether against judging.

"Judge not thy fellowman until thou art in his place". But can one man ever be subject to the precise conditions and circumstances which face another man? Hence the necessity for greatest caution. But more than that — there is the need for charity. "Judge every man according to the scale of merit". There is another side to every record.

That is the first part of our lesson — to beware against judging others. Now the second part of our lesson indicates the need to judge ourselves. For while most people are quick at judging others and loth to judge themselves, our lesson reminds us of the need to reverse our attitude. A chassidic teacher once remarked: "Why did the Omnipotent create man with two eyes? One to see his neighbour's virtues, the other to see his own faults". We do well to reflect that after all when we point a finger at someone else three fingers are turned inward toward ourselves!

This part of our lesson holds up the need for honest self-examination. It has been said that all our knowledge is really to know ourselves; hence the importance of undertaking the necessary discipline of self-appraisal. But to do this honestly is not easy. Few things require as much moral and intellectual courage as to face our weakness fairly and to acknowledge them in a spirit of humility. The average person is often afraid to accept the truth about himself and hides behind numerous ambiguities and self-deceptions.

Also there is the dormant fear that we might not be reaching the standards we once set and which we identify with ourselves. Honest self-examination can lead at first to disappointment. The French writer and philosopher Thoreau once prayed: "Great God, I ask Thee for no meaner pelf, than that I may not disappoint myself".

A similar plaint appears in the words of R. Zishe of Anapoli who wept on his death-bed: "Before the Heavenly Court, I will not be criticized for failing to be a Moses, an Aaron, a Hillel or a Rabbi Akiba. These I could never have been. But I will be rebuked for not becoming R. Zishe of Anapoli."

Self-judgment leads to repentance and repentance leads to self-improvement. The lesson begins to be timely as we go through the month of Elul.

Successful Adath Israel Parlour Meeting Heralds Outstanding Bond Drive

The excellent results achieved at the initial Parlour Meeting for Israel Bonds held by the Adath Israel Bond Committee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Granovsky has set the pace for what promises to be the most outstanding Israel Bond Campaign ever undertaken by members of Adath Israel Congregation.

Guest speaker of the evening was Morley J. Pape, Vice-Chairman of the State of Israel Bond Campaign of Toronto, who delivered an inspiring address on the growth and development of Israel and the vital role which Israel Bond dollars are playing in the great achievements on the economic front. In Mr. Pape's words, "When we invest in Israel Bonds, we become partners in these achievements, which are so stirring an expression of the vitality which freedom generates. Through our Israel Bonds, we are making a loan to Israel — a loan paying us four percent interest. The people of Israel have undertaken to repay this loan, and have shown by their historic economic development, the capacity to repay it. We have a special responsibility as Jews. We cannot say we are comfortable and therefore remain indifferent to the fate of others. We must face up to our responsibilities as Jews: we must share some of our resources with the people of Israel to help assure a safe future for them and ourselves. The Israel Bonds we buy are the one sure and effective way of signifying our understanding of Israel's role in the survival of the Jewish people, and of demonstrating our readiness to do our part in assuring a New Year of peace and progress for the people of Israel."

Guest entertainer Joey Russell, popular Yiddish raconteur, provided a most enjoyable program of Yiddish homour, and musical entertainment by Ronnie Granovsky highlighted the social hour which concluded the meeting.

Ghana needs Israeli tax specialists

JERUSALEM (JCNS) — The Ghana Government has asked Israel for the loan of a number of taxation experts. Details of the scheme are at present being worked out within the scope of the Ghana-Israel technical cooperation agreement.

The Ugandan Minister of Defence and Interior, Mr. Felix Onama, has also asked Israel to provide training facilities for more students from his country. He thought Israel's achievements in horticulture and animal husbandry would be of particular benefit to Uganda.

Mr. Onama returned here last week to complete a study tour he had interrupted to attend the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference in London.

There are now some 50 Ugandan students attending courses in Israel, including some medical students. A number of Ugandan Air Force pilots and Army officers are also being trained here.

TEL AVIV

By RUTHIE

Israel's largest city, Tel Aviv, is also the newest (only forty years old) of the three "bigs", the others being Jerusalem and Haifa. And with a population of half-a-million of various extraction, there's never a dull moment.

The cheerfulness of a people who work hard, their optimism despite an enemy's constant threat, infect every visitor.

Color provided by different elements is a never-ending source of delight. The Sabra — —native born Israeli —, the mixture of Israelis of foreign origin (Poles, Roumanians, Hungarians, Austrians), the Oriental Jew,, the Israeli-born Arab — all contribute towards a mosaic blending one within the other to form a whole that is different from anything else in the world.

Early morning, from six o'clock to one p.m., when people pause until 4 for a much needed siesta in this tropical clime, finds the city bustling with activity. Businesses are thriving and people are buying. Everywhere you get metziot (bargains). All of Israel, in fact, is experiencing a period of prosperity.

Even the small street vendor does a brisk business. He can't sell fast enough his wares of felafel, chick peas, corn, Indian nuts, pollyseeds, Newsboys spatter street corners with newspapers and magazines, from the most serious literature in paperback to the pornographic scandal sheet — in every conceivable language.

From late afternoon until seven, when it's really dark, work continues.

Then suddenly. the evening set appears. People dont' look different in their "going-out best," for Israel is a country where casualness reigns. Men work and play in rolled-up shirt sleeves, while any change in ladies' garb is noted by high heels.

Outdoor cafes, where one pays the equivalent of forty cents for a cup of coffee (including the right to sit over it indefinitely) are filled to overflowing, spilling sometimes across the sidewalks onto the road.

People don't look hard for entertainment. They create their own fun. They sing a lot, laugh a lot, joke a lot — and that's that.

The hotels which line the beaches of the Mediterranean are the last word in decor and comfort.

But, like everything else, there's much to be desired.

If I were a resident of Tel Aviv, I'd run for mayor, with a broom as my platform. Because — and I'm not exaggerating — I've never seen any place so dirty. Not only a section, but the whole city. In fact, it's the one or two small areas that stand out for cleanliness.

And, if I were elected, I'd insist that every storekeeper, every home owner, scrub his ground every morning. The city looks as though it hadn't been swept since the last cobblestone was laid.

Construction is always taking place, but no eyesores are demolished. You hesitate, for instance, before going into the main telegraph office; you're afraid something may fall on your head. It looks as if Joshua were fighting again the Battle of Jericho, and the walls were tumbling down. While nearby stands the Beit Sokolow, home of the government offices and Press Club, which, with their air conditioning and inside gardens, form a decided contrast.

Dizengoff Street, a main artery, looks bad enough by day. But late at night, when the street finally is deserted, you really feel and see the mess — the remains of a honky-tonk town.

If you walk along Dizengoff till you get to Mograbi Square, where it joins Allenby, you exclaim,

"If the two men after whom these streets were named got up from their graves and looked around, they'd go right back!"

Like our parking meters, these streets have garbage cans, filled to the brim. And the aroma can knock you out with one breath.

The Oriental immigrants (Moroccans, Greeks, Turks) are blamed for all these ills.

"What can you expect from such uncivilized people who come from countries where there aren't even toilets?"

Applesauce! They should be taught and given an example to follow. And if that didn't help — a good, stiff fine would.

Which brings us to cops. If I were mayor, I'd see they were around.

There are few policemen and fewer traffic lights. When you cross a street in Tel Aviv, you feel like bentching goymel (giving thanks to God for survival) when you get to the other side. No wonder there are more traffic accidents in Israel than anywhere else.

Drivers are "wheel happy", They go, they drive. Where they wind up is anyone's guess.

Did you ever ride in a cab in Tel Aviv? Mamanu, is that an experience!

First of all, they look like relics from the Stone Age. (Though afterawhile you learn that an Israeli has to pay seven thousand pounds for anything on wheels, ready for the junk pile, sold by his American benefactor). But the antiquity of the vehicle is toned down by the artistry of its owner. One cab I rode in had a yellow border; one door was painted blue, another, green. a third, yellow, a fourth, purple; the upholstery was ripped; there was enough sand inside to make a small desert. And the driver warned:

"Don't touch the door; I'll close it. I know how." He was afraid it would fall off its hinges.

Taxi drivers in general are an interesting bunch. There was the one who insisted upon taking us to a place other than where we wanted to go because he thought he knew better what we wanted. Then there was the guy who gave us a real bargain — a ride worth, maybe, three pounds for seven pounds, and on the way back it was nine pounds (the same distance) because "it's lila (evening) now." Then, going home late one night, there was the fellow who insisted upon honking his horn all the way.

"It's a friendly sound," he explained, "and keeps me from being lonely."

If I were mayor, I'd crack down on storekeepers. I can understand if a thing is expensive. You can take it or leave it. But I don't go for the two-price system. In the same shop, for the same article, the price is one for an Israeli, another (jacked up 200 per cent) for an American.

You should see Tel Aviv sometime. A fascinating city, she should live and be well forever.

THEATRE • MUSIC • FILM

by D. COHN

Bridget Bardeau, 29, contributed recently 20,000 francs ($4,000) to repair the Beth El Synagogue in Casablanca. She plans to marry Bab Zagurie, 42, from that city.

It's already thiry years since Groucho Marx and S. J. Perelman first worked together. Perelman is credited with having written the Marx Brothers' pictures, Horse Feathers and Monkey Business. Their friendship has bloomed ever since. Perelman, 60, is nine years younger than Groucho. Both are New Yorkers and Jewish. Perelman was born in Brooklyn. Grouch first saw the light of day on Manhattan's upper East Side.

Recently they discussed why the best comedians so often are Jewish, such as Eddie Cantor, Phil Silvers, Sid Caesar, Danny Kaye, Jack Benny, Mort Sahl, Lenny Bruce, George Burns, Milton Berle, Bert Lahr, the Marxes. Perelman feels "it's because the Jews were immigrants. Thy were wrestling with English as a foreign language. They'd take an Anglo-Saxon cliche — like 'I disbursed a goodly sum' — and make it funny by pronouncing it in the wrong accent. This became comic when uttered by Jews.

Groucho maintains (to Perelman), "You taught me that, but then I was trying to be an intellectual."

Groucho doesn't think Jewishness is the vital factor in American comedy; he attributes the Jewish hegemony to the fact that most American comedy is urban, and most big cities have a large Jewish population. He thinks longevity is the quality that makes Jewish performers unique, and he ascribes it to something unconnected with talent. "It's because Jews don't drink—at least, not much. Whenever Jewish comics get together, the bar bill is small."

The story of Hannah Szenes, fighter and heroine of the Israeli underground, will be filmed in Israel and in Yugoslavia. The picture will feature Susan Strassberg, Maximilian Schell and Lilli Palmer, as well as Yosef Yadin and Haim Topol, according to Israeli producer Menahem Golan. Script will be written by Robert St. John and Guilio Halevy.

Peter Finch, Australian star, is Sophia Loren's leading man in the film, Judith, which began production in Haifa Harbor.

Finch remembers fondly Israel since 1942 when he was a soldier in Julis and took his leaves in Tel Aviv. He modestly attributes his welcome to good relations which prevailed between the Aussies and the local population; he doesn't credit his good looks and charm.

He admires Sophia's ability as an actress. There is a warm comraderie between them, made easy because of his fluent Italian.

Finch is no mean painter. He plans to hold an exhibition after he returns to London and will include several Israeli canvasses. He also loves agriculture. He doesn't mind boycotts. He feels that art must transcend national boundaries. If filming in Israel means banning in Cairo, he will take the risk; he will not bow to blackmail. He is working now in a nearby kibbutz to get the feel of one from the inside. And nothing will faze him except, perhaps, working at KP.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS. — Above is a dancing scene from Wiener Blut (Vienna Life), one of Johann Strauss' lovely operattas, which will be performed at Toronto's O'Keefe Center for one week, starting Tuesday, August 25th.

Wiener Blut at O'Keefe to feature cast of 65

For the week commencing Tuesday, August 25th, Wiener Blut (Vienna Life), one of Strauss' most beloved operettas, will play the O'Keefe Centre.

A company of sixty-five, corps de ballet, orchestra, chorus and soloists will perform within sumptuous settings and in eye-filling costumes. The entire production is under the direction of Tony Niessner, one of Vienna's foremost stage directors, and has been choreographed by Fred Meister.

Libretto, by Leo Stein and Victor Leon, concerns itself with the sort of romantic intrigue that can exist only in the make-believe world of Viennese operetta, and is perhaps the most wildly involved tale of mistaken personalities and romantic adventures ever set to music.

The Johann Strauss score, one of the master's most popular and memorable creations, provides the background for a story set during the period of the so-called "Dancing Congress" of Vienna, whose delegates spent more time dancing that they did deliberating the future of Europe.

● This week the Royal Alexandra Theatre is showing Thursday Is A Good Night, starring veteran Broadway and Hollywood actor Tom Ewell as the Runyonesque central figure, Benny. The new Broadway-bound comedy is written by Abe Einhorn and Donald Segall.

Benny is a bookmaker. Thursday is Benny's birthday and he anticipates a quiet night at home. But some of his friends, including Sheree North, Russian spies, the FBI, the nosiest bellboy in New York, a journalist, a neighbor and a Chinese waiter, drop in on him. From there anything happens.

The play is directed by Judith Abbott, daughter of George Abbott. Cast includes Joseph Bova, John Svar, Anna Minot, Jay Barney, Abe Vigoda, John Garson, Bill Berrian, Andre Pascal, Richard Khan and Robert Chambers.

Ethylene gas plant starts production

A $5.5 million ethylene gas plant, the first of three plants that are the nucleus of a major petrochemical industry in Israel, has started production. A first shipment of ethylene gas has been sent to the bromine works at Sodom, on the Dead Sea, for further processing.

The gas is used in the production of ethylene-dibromide, a substance used in raising the octane content of gasoline.

The bromine works will take some 500 tons of the gas a year at the beginning, perhaps doubling that quantity within two years. A second plant, for the manufacture of carbon black, is just emerging from its running-in period, while a polyethelene plant will begin production later this summer.

Orthodoxy In Israeli Army

The religious vocational school, Boys Town Jerusalem, recently inaugurated a first-of-its-kind course aimed at preparing graduates to cope with the special problems confronting the religious soldier when he enters the army.

The course was organized in cooperation with the Military Rabbinate.

Canada Mayors For Bill

A resolution urging government action against incitement to racial or religious hatred was passed unanimously by the western region of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities this week.

Drawn up by Hubert L. Lynch, Deputy Mayor of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, it was approved by the three countries of Yarmouth, Digby and Shelbourne.

The resolution asked the Government of Nova Scotia to submit a request to the Postmaster General that "Post Offices in this Province carefully investigate all third class mail coming into the Province, and any such literature which contains hate propaganda to be turned over to the proper authorities".

It also requested the Department of Justice in Ottawa "to take immediate action to amend the Criminal Code so that action can be taken against those who spread racial hatred in our country".

The resolution will be submitted to the regular plenary meeting of the Union to be held in Halifax on August 30.

supersol scandals

Several days later, the same type of accident happened to Shapiro as had happened to Azulai, except that his vehicle virtually fell apart, making his escape unscathed, little short of miraculous. But sensing himself the target of a sinister plot, Shapiro was afraid to talk. He told police that he had been stung by a bee and had lost control of his vehicle.

The sinister clouds darkened still further when Shapiro's wrecked car disappeared, continues Olam Hazeh, and was sold by the Supersol company.

At this point it became Warshawski's turn to suffer the same fate as Shapiro and Azulai. Warshawski heads the department of Supersol which had the responsibility of stating whether or not Supersol had lost any money in its dealings with subsidiary companies. This information would materially assist the investigators of the fraud perpetrated against the company. He too lost control of his auto through causes pointing to deliberate tampering.

Olam Hazeh asks: "When will the Israeli police get to the bottom of this matter?". It then states that 10 days after the latest alleged automurder attempt Feinberg was arrested on suspicion of arson.

The magazine also alleged that while Feinberg earned only 2,500 Israeli pounds a month ($830), he had bought himself a villa for 250,000 Israeli pounds (about $83,000) and had also purchased expensive paintings.

The missing funds moreover, says Olam Hazeh, amounted to far more than the original estimates — seven milion Israeli pounds.
